

Pinky,

I am so sorry! I didn't even realise I didn't use you that much. I should never have neglected you. It's not easy trying to make things pink! I suppose I could start drawing more farms and lots of pigs. Or maybe some Amazonian Dolphins – apparently they're pink.

Flamingos too, I could make a zoo with all the pink animals for you.

I didn't once think you were just a girl's colour (even though my sister adores you!). Even my football boots have pink in them! It's just that you've never been needed in my pictures. It's probably because blue is my favourite colour, but that doesn't mean I don't like you.

I promise, if you come back to work, I will make sure I use you more. If you like, I will make all my monsters and dinosaurs and creatures pink, and even make a pink zoo just for you. Perhaps I'll keep sharing you with my sister so you can get double the use. How does that sound? Please come back!

Your mate,

Duncan
